WELCOME TO 2ND SEMESTER!

By James MacFarlane

We made it!

The halfway point of the school year, and what a great way to get there!

She Kills Monsters had a tremendous turnout, with over 650 in attendance. Cast and crew all performed well their roles, and the creature work done by the Technical Theatre classes and utilized by the Monster Corps was a particular favorite of each audience.

Several people mentioned to me how the scenic pieces made the show feel like an immersive Dungeons & Dragons adventure, and that is all thanks to the hard work of the Technical Theatre scenic carpenters (we know that carpet floor was a challenge of epic proportions) and the artwork provided by Zach Johnson and Kiera Wolf.

As we turn our focus toward the future, we must prepare for a deep dive under the sea to the world of Nickelodeon's SpongeBob the Musical - a show for a slightly different audience than She Kills Monsters. We hope that the big kids that enjoyed SKM will come back to be with us for this production, but hopefully they will bring with them any little kids they know.

The world of Bikini Bottom is being built to be enjoyed by children, and we hope to see many of them (and you) at the show!
