

GHTC NEWS

SPRING FORWARD!

By James MacFarlane

Not just a reminder to change the clocks for Daylight Savings Time (which means the clock in my classroom will be back to being correct) but also a reminder that even though this year hasn't ended yet, we are already looking ahead to the 23/24 school year!

After our successful production of She Kills Monsters proved that it was possible to rehearse, build, and produce a production inside of a class, we started to look for the next great title that would allow our students' strengths to shine through and be seen. And after a lot of reading, discussion, decision, backtracking on that decision, more reading, even more discussion, some tense almost-yelling, and then sending the title off to admin for approval, we are happy to announce that the title reveal for next year's Advanced Ensemble production will be at our Spring Thing Social Hour on Tuesday March 21.

The Spring Thing Social Hour will be open to all GHTC members and there will be snacks and drinks available, although it is still a good idea to bring a real lunch, popcorn doesn't offer much fuel to get you through the rest of your day. The show will be announced at 11:00, but if you want a good seat, come first and come early. The event will be in the Auditorium during both lunches.

We hope to see you there!
